Why blended learning?

ILX combines interactive computer based training courses with add on workshops which have proven to significantly increase pass rates and students' confidence in the subject matter. Taking time out of the office for most people is difficult, which is why this solution works extremely well.

The initial part of the learning process is achieved by using a computer based approach with interactive CD-ROM. Each delegate is able to progress at his/her own pace on an individual basis, repeat sessions for a better understanding and, when ready, practice sample examination questions until proficient.

The second part of the learning process is tutor led in a short but effective workshop. This enables delegates to consolidate their understanding of the fundamental principles of the subject by applying their newly learnt knowledge to real world scenarios.
